"Innovation doesn't require a special space, but a nurturing ecosystem can ensure the best ideas become practical reality and bring together partners—even if only virtually," said Joseph Giarraputo, publisher and editorial director of Global Finance. "Global Finance's annual list includes private and public organizations that bring together and focus talent, ideas and money on addressing the world's financial pain points and delivering value-rich solutions."

All selections were made by the editorial board of Global Finance with the input of reporters who are experts on the functions being served by these innovators. Entries from banks, consultants and other organizations were carefully considered as part of the decision process.
